Wii DJ Hero - Monstrous Hot Game From Activision

After the large success and many million gross revenue from the Guitar Hero series made by Activision, they have decided to release another Hero series feature but this one is made more for R&B, rap and different types of dance music. It is wii DJ hero for the Nintendo Wii, a turntable control dependent, music and beat game from Activision. If you bought, used or know the games from the Hero series like: Guitar Hero which made a colossal success in gross sales, then this new DJ variation game will be in the same quality standards that we got used to in the hero series and will bring participants a feel of being a club dj star.

That's not the only dj wannabe game to be published this year. Konami will be issuing the Beatmania game that is not very different from the DJ Hero for wii game. But the Activision game should give a near world experience with a high supreme mixing like music, that will give the dance floor music amateur their dose of bpm. Other exciting better features are the exclusive new tracks from Eminem & Jay-Z that were made solely for the dj hero game

Activision claims that the game is about spinning, remixing and conducting like a DJ as if you are making a gang of dance buffs, that enjoy that kind of music that you hear in a club dance, their brains out. The game will include songs of type of music like Rap, R&B and hip-hop, different types of dance music that normally will be loved by the club goers and others that are partisans of this rhythm of sound.

2 other exciting features are the free style mode that will give you the opportunity of mixing and spinning that is just like the professionals. This is the chance to realise the daydream of being a DJ.

The second thrilling feature is 10 tracks that are played both with the turntable controller of the DJ hero game and with the guitar control from the guitar hero game. This will permit the fans of rap metal and rock metal to play dance style music with electric guitar tracks.

DJ Hero game will be available for Nintendo Wii, playstation 2, playstation and Xbox 360. on sale on fall 2009.

The recent news and rumors that are circultuing on the net are that both the developers and the distribution companies want to have uniformed hero game play experience by incorporating all the controls of old and upcoming hero games in the future games. This means that in guitar hero 5, dj hero and band hero you will be capable to play with the guitar, turntable, drums and microphone.
